Are there quantum predators? Those who are biting quantums of reality off our consciousness?

For example, piranhas. After all, during the quantum transition of the river of consciousness from one state to another, we can find anything in these waters. Along with the mysteries of the existence of parallel worlds and time travels, quantum physics yet cannot answer these questions of the multivariance of being. Be cautious. Even while listening to music. Perhaps when you listen to music, the music also listens to you. In any case, always remember: reality is formed under the attention of the observer.
